

Education Reporter:

Rhode Island Public Radio seeks a journalist, who loves enterprise reporting and creative story telling for the position of Education Reporter. The successful applicant will have experience with public radio style reporting of features and hard news. The reporter will primarily cover education policy and efforts to improve skills among the entire state of Rhode Island. The reporter will be expected to develop sources and original story ideas, while also investigating issues identified by other members of the news team. This is a grant funded position, subject to renewal after the first year. Send Resume and work samples to:

Mark Degon, News Director
Rhode Island Public Radio
1 Union Station
Providence, RI 02903