GUIDELINES FOR PUBLIC PARTICIPATION IN MEETINGS OF NPR BOARD OF DIRECTORS

1. Members of the public are welcome to attend open meetings of the NPR Board of Directors. (The Board of Directors addresses confidential and proprietary matters in executive session. Executive sessions are not open to the public).
2. The NPR Board of Directors typically has a very packed agenda for its meetings. We ask members of the public who attend open session meetings to respect the Board's need to move through its agenda without interruption.
3. NPR will entertain requests to address the Board of Directors during open sessions of the Board. Requests to address the Board must be received by NPR's Board Liaison at least an hour prior to the start of the open session.

You may request an opportunity to address the Board either by delivering an email to the NPR Board Liaison at boardliaison@npr.org or by submitting a written request to the NPR Board Liaison at the mailing address listed above. Please include a brief description of the subject you wish address and your contact information (so we know how to reach you).

4. In considering requests to address the Board of Directors, NPR may take into account, among other things: the amount of time available in the meeting, the number of individuals seeking to address the Board, and other business before the Board.
